

This final report summarizes the capabilities and utilities of the already delivered AD-FMM code package. It provides several single and array patch examples with feed designs to demonstrate the code utility and its application to realistic problems. The latest XML interface is described and curved array examples are given for the first time, including situations with radome layers.